Sinck Law.

Barrett, Ill., April 28th, 1909.

Mr. S. M. Jenkin, Marion, Ky. Dear Sire:-I see in the RECORD-PRESS the people, of Kentucky, are talking of voting for the stock law, if they do, they will make a big mistake. We have the stock law out here and I know what it is and it is not as bad on the people here as it is out there, for there is not as much land out side here as there is in Kentucky. It will be small farm and the man that drives hog pens, and what will the stock do for water? I see hogs in pens out here and they have to feed them the year round and stake the cows out along the road.

They have quite a good deal of hedge and woven wire fences out here but some of the farmers makes a turning row out of the road-have corn and wheat right at the edge of the road and that makes it bad for any one driving stock.

I thought I would tell my friends in Kentucky not to vote trouble on themnot very good and water gets scarce in summer.

I know we get mad when stock breaks in, but ours might break out and then we would have to pay to get them out of the pound pen.

Yours Respectfully, GEORGIA JACKSON.

Dr. Johnson, as is well known, refused for many months to believe in the Lisbon earthquake, and Parislans formerly were just as skeptical as to the existence of the giraffe, a new specimen of which had just been added to the Jardin des Plantes. The earliest specimen of these gentle creatures was seen in Paris in the reign of Louis XVI. We learn from a French contemporary that the giraffe was first heard of in 1787, when it was described by a Frenchman named Levalilant, who had journeyed in the lands of the Hottentots and Kaffirs. When the explorer referred to the animals with the long necks he was looked upon as a Munchausen and told that he was such in not the polltest language. it was only when some living specimens arrived in the French cap-Ital that Levalliant's reputation for veracity was re-established, and then Many hardships endured by students | the animals for a long time formed attending university or college in the sensation of Paris, not only among Scotland have been brought to fight the multitude, but in all scientific cir

Chinese Taxes.

"he Chinese government, while it collects a part of its revenue from on toms, relies largely upon the provinces to supply revenue, and arbitrarily names each year the sum which each province must supply, leaving to the officers of that province the methods by which this is obtained. The consequence is that each province is permitted to collect a tax on goods entering it from adjacent provinces and this custom has been extended to the subdivision of the provinces, so that goods in transit are frequently compelled to pay taxes every few miles. As a consequence, the interior taxes, known as "iikin" become not only the terror of importers, but sometimes almost probiltory.

Cheerfulness of Engilshmen.

If you ask any intelligent foreigner what his chief impression of England is he will invariably reply the cheerfuiness of the English. If any proof were needed of the prevaient gloom it would surely be found in the astonishment which the few remaining cheerful people cause and the amazing popularity they enjoy. Our sunny friends and acquaintances can be counted on our fingers; our dismal ones are all around us. A really cheerful Englishman is such a phenomenon that everybody asks his wife if "he is always like that," and refuses to believe her when she answers in the affirmative.-Lady Gor-

THE ASSET OF GOOD ROADS.

"Does it pay a county to assume a large indebtedness in order to obtain good rowls?" Is a question asked by the Glasgow Times, and then the Times ; receeds to say that Palding county, Ohio, answers, "Yes," with enthusiasm. The times then continues:

"Since 1882, Paulding county has been issuing bond to raise money with which to improve the highways. It was not, however, until 1898, that the campaign for good roads really started in the county. The people wearied of the half-hearted and almost futile attempts | CALL MEETING OF THE to make a road out of soil that once had been the bed of a swamp. There were months when the roads could not be complained of and other months when the cautious farmer hesitated between wagon and boat when he had to go to market. Today the county has nearly 500 miles of excellent macadam in exchange for a million-dollar debt. Land in 1800 could be bought for $5 an acre. It climbed up to $15 by 1889.

"Now it sells around $50. Choice land, which in 1898 bought $50 an acre now command $150. The tax duplicate now shows a valuation of $7,348,000 admittedly for smaller and actual values. The population has been increasing, and crop returns have improved tremendously. There is a demand for farming property. Facilities for trans portation are excellent and are inproving.

CHAPTER XIII.

In Which We Sall Due South.

Those days and nights following. while serving to hear us continually deener into the immense expanse of water that concealed the mystery awaltlag us in the great South sea, contained little of incident directly relating to this narrative. Day following day that same wide circle of the sky came down to unite with the circle of the waters. It was almost as though we remained motionless, "a painted ship upon a painted ocean"; only the figures on the paper, the pins on the chart, the sharp stem cleaving the waves asunder, and the oily wake astern leaving us aware of steady progression through this trackless desert of the sea.

We passed somewhat to the westward of Juan Fernandez, so far out that only with a glass from the foretop could the distant peaks be dimly deciphered in blue, misty blots against the sky. Aiready Tuttle had banked the fires, and spread the Sea Queen's canvas, reaching to the westward to get the most possible out of the fresh breeze. The Sea Queen changed motive power and appearance as if by magic, the square yards hiding the jauntiness of her keel, and concealing the rake of her masts, the white sails bellowing out before the wind, sending her swooping forward through the water like a great bird, leaning over until at times her lee rail was all awash with white foam and her forward decks glistening with spume.

Tuttle drove her recklessly, holding on in splte of crackling wood and sails threatening to tear loose from the bolt-eyes, taking shrewd advantage of each siant of wind, and lowering cenvas only when danger was deadly. Ha had come into his own, he was at home, and the rejuvenated Sea Queen leaped forward at his will, as though endowed with fresh life. He seemed to understand her moods, her caprices, as though he had salled her in every sea, and I watched him test her, loosening a rope here, tightening another there, striving to discover her good and bad qualities, until my admiration for his seamanship almost overbalanced my growing detestation of him otherwise.

Lady Darlington became positively afraid of him, dreading his approach, shrinking from his address, yet not daring to withdraw wholly from his presence. ills sole topic of conversation was psychomancy, and every time she endeavored to lead him to some more pleasant subject he would return with dogmatic persistence to that one rather dismal theme. His blatant self-concelt saved him from realizing her atter wearlness, and he never seemed to fire of his own unctuous, nasal tones, Heavens, but the fellow was an insufferable bore. Celeste would slip away unobserved, but her mistress and myself had no means of escape. I remained quietly below for three days, and even then was not released by any formal word of mouth. I simply became so tired of the senseless iniprisonment that I mounted to the deck, taking Lady Darlington with me, determined to be confined to the cabla to longer except by physical force. De-Nova was upon the bridge when we

SPARROW KILLING IN MICHIGAN One thousand and slxty-four spnrrows were slaughtered by Marquette boys in three months of the open season for birds ending with the close of February. At the rate of 2 cents a head, the feathered prey netted the youngsters a total of $21.28 in bounties.

Larger payments were made in other Upper Michigan cities. The sparrow bounty law is not in much favor in this county, and there is hope that the legislature will repeal it or will at least make its terms onal with the counties. The oppoing to the statute is based on hu-emerged from the companion, but he merely glanced at us curiously. Tut 'le, coming aft a little later, retained sense enough to remain sileat. The three days passed below had thrown me much late the society of both mits tress and mald, although the frank intlinacy of that first conversation with Lady Darlington was never resumed. There seemed an Intangible barrier of reserve between us. al though we talked freely enough regarding our situation, the peculiarities of Tuttle, and the constantly changing wonders of the deep. It was as if neither of us quite dared to probe byneath the surface, opening up orce drift as the tide ran. I saw comparatively little of De Nova, the second officer, during this period, and gained an impression that he was endeavoring to avoid meeting: me. Yet I ran across him twice in company with Celeste, once in the cabin, and again in the narrow deck space overhanging the stern, and be gan to hone vaguely that the girl was winning him over to our interests. With the others I sought to approach I made no progress. McKnight seldom showed his nose above deck, and then only to smoke in sullen slience, seated gloomily on the edge of the main hatch or to the lee of the charthouse. Olsen was undoubtedly honest enough, yet without intelligence, his eyes those of a falthful dog. The Chliean, a smooth-faced young fellow wonderfully deficient in chin, I learned had been assigned as assistant to the cook, and was thus kept too busy inside the galley even to be approached. indeed, so far I had not seen his face on board the ship.

CHAPTER XIV.

In Which De Novs Spesks.

What now occurred came upon us with such suddenness that I find it difficult to relate the incidents in detail. We must have been below the fiftleth degree of south latitude, and about 135 degrees west, with the wind strong and occasionally puffing up into squalls, bearing flakes of snow which string exposed flesh and left a thin mantle of white along the decks. It was Tuttle's watch below, and as I paused in the protection of the companlonway looking forward, while I got my plpe golng, i could see De Nova on the bridge, wrapped up like a mumniy, and crouching well down behind the tarpaulins. All about was a wild sea scene, never to be looked upon amld any other stretch of waters on the globe-a dull, dead picture of utter desolation, of madly racing waves, of green, sullen sea, of pale blue sky, the very frost in the air apparent; a cold, drear expanse of monotonous distance wherever the eye looked-a desert of water below, a vold of alr above. Blg Blll Anderson, his head still bound up where I had cracked him, slouched in the doorway of the charthouse, staring aft, and a moment later De Nova came lumbering down the steps from the bridge nd spoke with him for some earnest

The boatswaln firally went forward, clinging to a lifeline to keep fooling on the slippery deck, and the second officer clawed along the weathcreall until he reached the companion "I would like to have talk wiz you. Mons. Stephens," he said, quite respectfully, swaying to the wild leaps of the vessel. "Maybe If we go to ze lee of ze cabin here we'll be out of ze

I followed him in silence, wondering what could be coming now, yet ready enough to take advantage of any opportunity which might present itself. De Nova braced his back against the rall, his cap drawn so low that I could percelve little of his face but the glitter of black eyes.

"We're a fittle bit bozzered w'at to do, Anderson an' me," he began, evideutly ili at ease and scarcely knowing how to express himself, "an' so we talk it ovaire, an' decide maybe we bettah speak wiz you about it now, before ze mattalre get mor' bad, or z men forward catch on to ze facts an get ugly. Maybe it come out all right maybe not, but, by gar, It win't no nice job to go sall 'bout zese seas under a madman-sacre, non!"

I stared into the mate's face, barely able to comprehend this quick justification of my forebodings, brought so closely home. Tuttle was odd enough to he sure, eccentric in both word and action, cracked undoubtedly in matters of spiritism, but that he was a reslly dangerous innatic had never once entered my head. I shivered at sudden renlization of the peril we were in, but remained only partfully convinced.

"What reason have you to think the man as bad as a'l that?"

"Well, mouseur, I watch him for long time; It'll, he wutch him, for we not like ze was he act since we first sall. I left him studying over it and discended the companionsteps, unwilling longer to remain out of sight of those i grarded. My lady met me In the dim light of the cabin, her fips smilling well-ome.

"I have just found the music you were so anxious to hear," she exclaimed, triumphantiy. "Shaii I play It for you now?"

And so we salled on into the pitiless ice, through the cold, gray seas of the Antaretle, under a mail skipper, and I looked down at her smooth cheek, breathed the faint perfume of her hair, and strove valuly to forget.

LYNX TUMBLES UPON BOY.

Feroclous Animal Shot by Hunter In Nick of Time.

Spokane, Wash.-George Anderson, a planeer resident of Latah. Wash. near Spokane, saved the life of Floyd Stone, 12 years of age, by killing a iynx which was about to attack the hoy after springing from a tree. The animal measured four and a half feet Historic Dinning Room Ruined from nose to tail Anderson and his young companion had spent the day on the trail, and the result of their sconting over the hills and in the ravines was that of forever silencing the howis of three coyotes.

Turning their faces toward home an hour before dusk the hunters had proceeded a short distance when Andersun's three for hounds bayed and started off on a trail. The older hunter examined the tracks and his experience told him that they were made by a lynx only a few minutes before the dogs took the scent.

After the dogs they went and on reaching the top of a rise they caught sight of the hounds and saw just ahead of them the big lynx.
